Item 8.01. Other Events

As reported in its Form 10-Q for the quarterly period ended October 31, 2005, Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (the "Company") has received a grand jury subpoena from the United States Attorney's Office in Los Angeles, California, seeking documents and information relating to the Company's receipt, transportation, handling, identification, recycling, treatment, storage and disposal of certain merchandise that constitutes hazardous materials or hazardous waste. The Company also received administrative requests from the California Department of Toxic Substances Control requesting similar documents and information. California state and local authorities and the State of Nevada have also initiated investigations into this matter. The Company is cooperating fully with the respective authorities.

The Company has now been informed by the U.S. Attorney that it is a target of a criminal investigation into potential violations of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act ("RCRA"). The investigation by the U.S. Attorney involves, among other things, the transportation of returned merchandise from the Company's stores in California to its Return Center in Las Vegas, Nevada. Historically, the Company's practice has been to consolidate certain returned merchandise at its Return Centers, then dispose of the merchandise classified as "hazardous waste" by transporting such merchandise from the Return Center to a certified waste disposal facility using a certified hazardous waste carrier.

The U.S. Attorney contends that the use of Company trucks to transport certain materials from its stores to its Return Centers is prohibited by RCRA because those materials may be considered hazardous waste. The government alleges that, to comply with RCRA, the Company must ship from the store certain materials as "hazardous waste" directly to a certified disposal facility using a certified hazardous waste carrier.

The Company cannot predict the outcome of this matter or the amount of any possible loss or range of loss which may arise from this matter.
